

About Ickle Pickle

Ickle Pickle Productions is a Canberra-based production company, providing quality entertainment to the Canberra community as well as technical solutions for live theatre, television and film. Ickle Pickle Productions was founded by Justin Watson as a result of a request by the Belconnen Community Service Arts and Cultural Program to produce a family show suitable for all ages at Christmas 2005. Justin quickly gathered together a group of experienced production personnel with whom he had worked on other productions. The result was the critically acclaimed and box office success known as Goldilocks, by Peter Macdonald. Since these humble beginnings, Ickle Pickle Productions has rapidly become an established fixture in the Canberra theatre community. Already Ickle Pickle Productions has become known for developing numerous new shows, providing Canberra audiences and performers with the opportunity to see and be involved in original and innovative productions, rather than the oft-repeated shows so many companies rely on in an attempt to ensure audiences. Ickle Pickle has also been commissioned by the National Gallery of Australia to produce three original productions to open new exhibitions, including Muse de Light, which opened the Masterpieces from Paris Exhibition in 2009. Ickle Pickle Productions differs from most theatre companies in Canberra in that we provide a structured, supportive and fun theatre environment with a professional production team, covering all aspects of theatrical performance. Whilst we rely heavily on volunteers to help bring our shows to stage, our core production team is made up of professionals who are currently employed in their field of expertise, not retired public servants with "many years experience". or people with limited experience, and as a result cast members can expect to learn and hone their theatre skills. Ickle Pickle strives to produce high quality, accessible and original entertainment to the Canberra community, at the lowest prices possible.
